

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT CHANGES TO ONTARIO CONDO LAWS

WHY ARE THE LAWS CHANGING?

Because of incredible growth in Ontario's condominium sector over the past two decades, the Government announced a review of existing condo legislation in 2012. An extensive 18-month public consultation process produced over 200 recommendations, many of which were incorporated into the 2017 Protecting Condominium Owners Act.

WHO IS AFFECTED BY THE NEW LEGISLATION?

The new Protecting Condominium Owners Act affects anyone with a financial interest in condos in the province. Specifically, it outlines new requirements and legal obligations for both property managers and condo board members, and expands on the rights of condo owners to ensure that their investment isn't compromised by disreputable administration practices.

750,000
Ontario Condo Units¹

10%
of Ontario Population Lives in Condos²

10,000
Ontario Condo Corporations¹

50%
of New Ontario Homes Under Construction are Condos³

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW LEGISLATION

The new laws are designed to safeguard the investments of condo buyers provincewide. Chief among the new regulations includes training and education standards for both property managers and condo board members, the creation of new oversight bodies, the establishment of a new tribunal, and communications enhancements that will improve transparency.

NEW CONDO AUTHORITY

The Condominium Authority of Ontario (CAO) will be responsible for administering & enforcing condo regulations in the province.

TRIBUNAL

The Condominium Authority Tribunal (CAT) will hear disputes, propose resolutions and provide enforcement for all processes and declarations.

CONDO BOARD MEMBER EDUCATION STANDARDS

The CAO will provide, certify, and oversee compliance with new mandatory minimum educational requirements for board members.

Property Management Obligations

Property managers will now be bound by a new Condo Management Services Act (CMSA), as well as seeing new standards of operational ethical conduct being introduced along with disciplinary penalties for non-compliance.

New Property Management Licensing Authority

Condo property managers will now be required to undergo licensing and certification, to be conducted and administered through the new Condominium Management Regulatory Authority of Ontario (CMRAO)

Condo Administration Changes

New rules concerning board member conflict of interest disclosure, standardization of communication between boards and owners, and changes to how condo meetings are established and run as well as new voting procedures.

Fee Levy For Owners

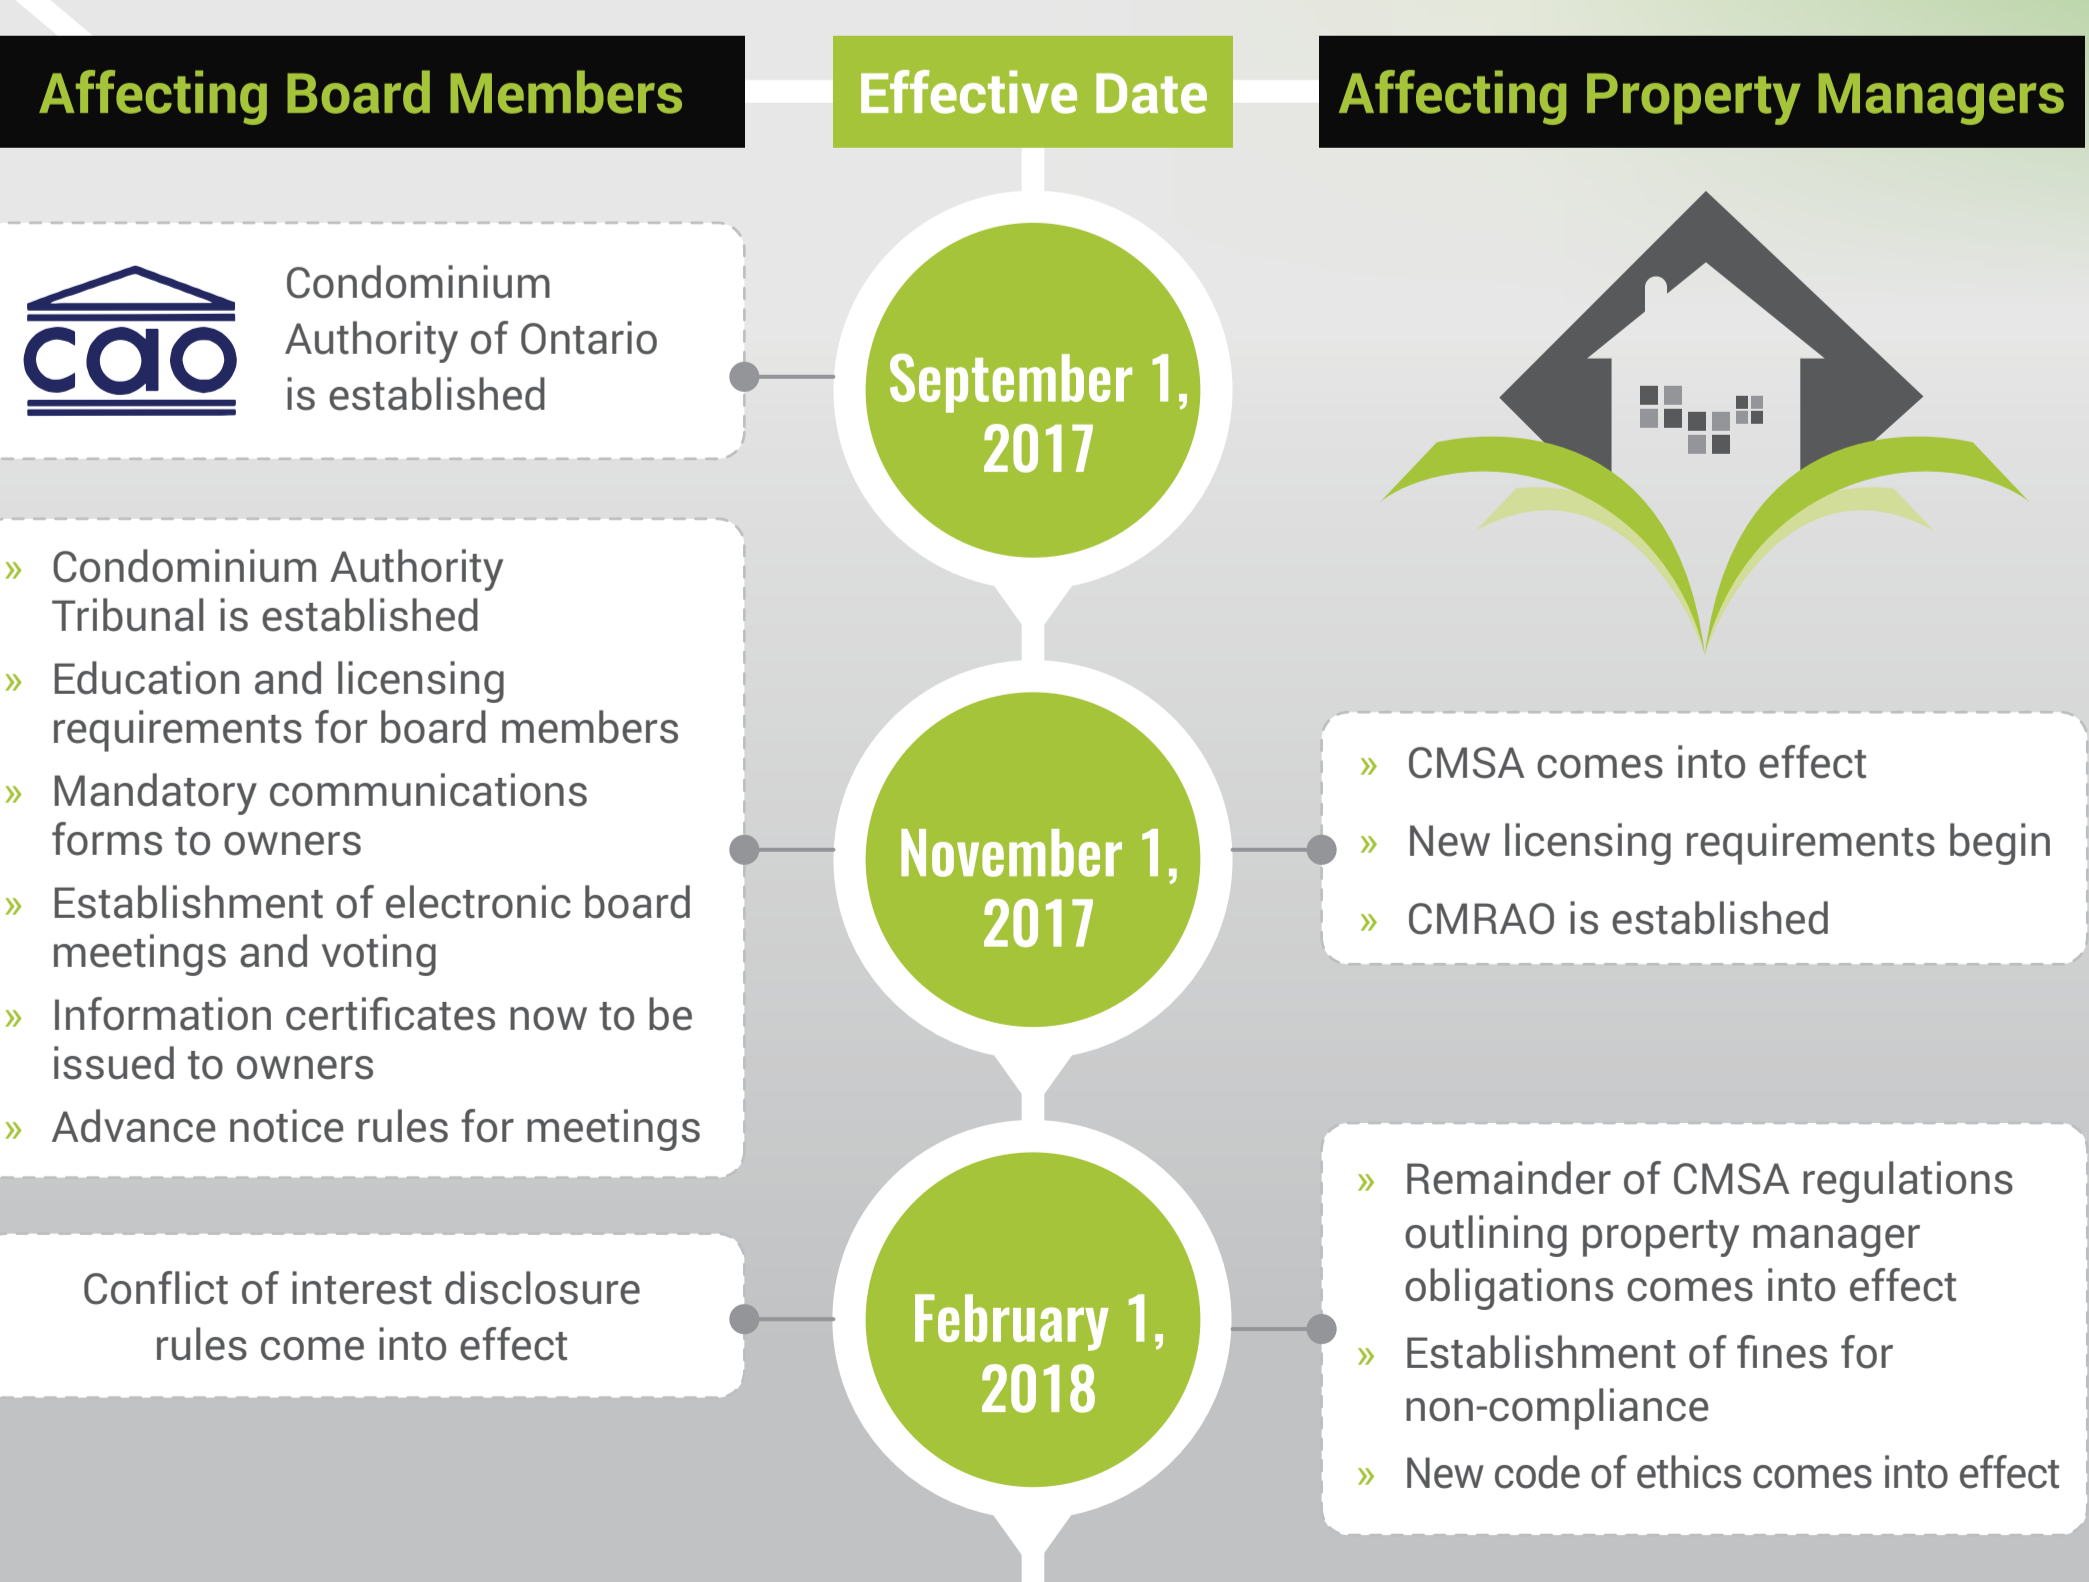

Condo unit owners will be charged a fee of approximately $12 per year per unit to cover the operating costs of the CAO. As well, the Tribunal will charge fees ranging from $25 to $125 for dispute resolution.

TIMELINE

When Do The New Changes Come Into Effect?

Due to the sweeping number of changes involved, the Protecting Condominium Owners Act is being implemented in phases over three key dates. Here is when the changes affecting board members and property managers will come into effect.

READ OUR FULL BLOG

Click The Items Below to Learn More
 What You Need to Know About Changes to Ontario Condo Law
 Protecting Condominium Owners Act 2015
 Condominium Management Services Act 2015
 Condominium Authority of Ontario (CAO)
 Condominium Management Regulatory Authority of Ontario (CMRAO)
 Association of Condominium Managers of Ontario (ACMO)

<https://www.iccpropertymanagement.com/>
 Tel: 647-559-4322
 Fax: (905) 940-3881
 24hr Emergency Line: (416) 346-0323

References
 1. https://www.thestar.com/business/real_estate/2017/07/25/ontario-to-roll-out-new-rules-for-condo-boards.html
 2. <https://globalnews.ca/news/3622356/new-condo-rules-ontario/>
 3. <https://news.ontario.ca/mgs/en/2017/11/new-protections-for-condo-communities-now-in-effect.html>

Infographic created by ICC Property Management